Slovak People Honor Memory of General Stefanika --- Adult Choir Sang National Songs

Inspiring Addresses Review Career of Liberator of People Who Met Tragic Death

The Slovak people of Crows Nest Pass Towns from Natal, B.C. to Bellevue, Alta., met on Friday evening in Coleman Community hall to commemorate the anniversary of the tragic death of General M. R. Stefanika, to whom is credited most of the glory of restoring to the Slovaks their national rights and privileges after 1,000 years under the oppression of other nations, latterly that of Austria-Hungary. Their Kingdom, Czechoslovakia, was formed as a sovereign state following the Great War.

The history of General Stefanika was reviewed in the Slav language by M. Kalivoda of Colman, and in the English by Rev. Father Dunbar, parish priest.

The latter stated it was fitting that they should meet for the glorification of a great national hero, for he whose death they commemorated that general was truly the liberator of his country, and a glorious example of manliness and virtue. Those who know very little of his history would be interested to know something of the circumstances under which he came into prominence.

For 1,000 years the history of the Slovak people was that of oppression by other powers, but they never gave up their struggle for national independence. Short respite came in 1848 and again in 1862, but the Hungarian people gaining control tried to turn them from their ideas by suppression of Slovak schools, libraries and other sources of learning.

The nineteenth century came, and with it the Great War. The Slovaks required a leader, and he appeared in the person of a young man, born in 1880 in a small Slovak village, who attended Hungarian schools. He led the "adult choir" under Mike Panels sent the inferiority cast upon his singing some very pleasing selections in perfect harmony which were highly creditable. Children's drills under M. Kalivoda were carried out with surprising precision and were heartily applauded, and the program concluded with a one act sketch which provided plenty of laughs.

Following the concert a dance was held which brought to a close a most enjoyable occasion long to be remembered.

MAY EXTEND INVITATION FOR 1935 CONVENTION WESTERN CANADA FUEL ASSOCIATION

Western Canada Fuel Association will hold its annual convention at Edmonton next week, and the convention is likely to be repeated by O. E. S. Whitehead and W. S. Purvis. There should be much to interest delegates next year by holding the convention here, and the association will welcome visitors from the coal trade in the prairie provinces. This section of the Rockies provides many sources of recreation and make a pleasant stay, and business men may well consider extending an invitation to hold the convention here in 1935.

Up-To-Date Coal Cleaning Plant

TODAY, anything but the best in coals has little chance of successful sale in prairie markets. Recognizing this fact Coleman mines have within recent years installed up-to-the-minute cleaning equipment, each costing well over one-quarter of a million dollars, for the purpose of making their already high quality product still more acceptable to the consumer.

The above illustrates the "International" cleaning plant. Townspeople are well acquainted with its external appearance but few realize the importance of its work. Briefly, the operation is as follows: the coal coming from the mine is conveyed on a huge belt to the top of the tipple where it is divided into two major sizes, the larger of which passes over a Marcus screen and the refuse removed by hand. The smaller size which is to be dry-cleaned is first carefully sized over Hummer screens, and the quality of the ultimate cleaned product depends upon the efficiency of this operation.

After splitting into several smaller sizes, the coal passes down to the cleaning tables and the separation of pure coal from rock and other refuse is made possible by taking advantage of the difference in weight between coal and rock of similar size. A blow fan beneath each table is used to produce a strong current of air, which passes through perforations on the table deck and forms hundreds of tiny air jets, which attack the coal from underneath and make it float on the air. On the table are a number of riffles or partitions which are higher at the top end of the table than at the bottom.

The coal floating on the air as it does passes over these riffles towards the side of the table where it is the first to pass off into the chutes provided for it; the rock on the other hand because of its weight cannot rise above the riffle and thus by table vibrations is carried along these to the lower end of the table and passes off into another chute and then to the rock dump.

The huge cones seen at the north side of the building are part of the dust collecting system, and are provided to collect the dust floating in the air within the plant. Controlling the dust assists in preventing explosions, and permits men to work within the plant without discomfort. The washing plant has a capacity of about 2,000 tons of cleaned coal per 8-hour shift, and was built with an eye to future market developments.

Business Man Tells of Greater Co-Operation in Factory Through Group Influence.

Oxford Groupers from Calgary and Lethbridge gave added interest to church services in the Pass towns on Saturday. At the evening service in the Greenhill hotel, Blairmore, St. Alban's Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Weaver of Calgary and Mr. Bob Lytle gave short talk of human interest, explaining how they had benefited from life by practicing the principles of the Oxford Group, which consisted fundamentally of being absolutely honest with oneself as well as teachers of Pass schools.

W. Cole of Bellevue is newly elected president of the trustees association, succeeded by J. M. Allan. W. Chappell of Blairmore remains as secretary. Vice-presidents appointed were J. M. Allan, Coleman; O. M. Olsen, Blairmore; and greater co-operation in all departments had resulted, with a feeling of general goodwill.

Mr. Weaver, who is president of the Calgary Box Co. Ltd., stated that in his business life he had found great benefit by observing these principles, and greater co-operation in all departments had resulted, with a feeling of general goodwill.

Mr. Weaver's talk dealt with home life and the improved relations created with their children through the Group influence. It brought greater peace of mind and enabled her to commence the day with a grip of the things to be done instead of things towns.

Vladimir Soroff Fatally Hurt By Freight Train Died Three Hours Later in Hospital

8-Year-Old Boy Falls Beneath Car When Attempting to Jump on Car Ladder.

After viewing the body of Vladimir Soroff, 8 years, who was so severely injured on Saturday afternoon by being run over by a freight train that he died three hours later, the adjourned inquest held on Monday evening in the council chamber under Coronet Morrison returned a verdict of accidental death.

Eyewitnesses giving evidence were Thomas Hill, Walter Mullin, Tony Luska, 12 years, and George Soroff, 7-year-old brother of the deceased.

Hill and Mullin's evidence was to the effect that they were in the vicinity at 4 p.m. Saturday, May 5. They saw the boy running to the train and reach for the bottom of the iron ladder on a box car. Falling the first time, on the second attempt he was pulled under the west-bound freight train about 135 feet east of McGillivray crossing. They stopped an oncoming automobile driven by Frank Lyons of Blairstown, and conveyed the boy to hospital. The train stopped immediately east of McGillivray crossing, the conductor coming back to the scene of the accident.

The boy dragged himself from the track as soon as the train had passed, the speed of which was estimated at 15 miles an hour.

Tony Luska, a boy companion, stated that as deceased were on their way to pick flowers. Vladimir said he wanted to jump on the train, and Tony saw him make his fatal attempt. George Soroff, younger brother, of deceased, said he saw Vladimir reach twice for the ladder and fall under the train.

Dr. Borden gave medical evidence, stating that the boy was brought to the hospital a few minutes after 4:00 p.m. on May 5th, suffering from an extensive wound of the left leg and the left lower abdomen and severe shock. Soroff failed to respond to treatment for shock and was discharged dead at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Borden's diagnosis was compound-commuted fracture of left femur, extensive lacerations of left thigh muscles, evulsion of skin of lower left abdomen, undetermined ultra-abdominal injuries and accompanying shock.

After a brief interval the jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

The jurors were Frank G. Creegan, G. R. Neil, H. Tiberghien, M. W. Cooke, S. B. Ryan, J. N. Schwartz.

The Soroff family have lived in West Coleman for many years. Vladimir being a pupil at Cameron school.

Simpler Problems Baffle Man

While world opinion is disturbed and distorted by threats of war and general unrest, while thoughts of budgetary deficits and problems of trade engage anxious minds at home, it is inspiring to turn to conquests of the physical universe which, from time to time, demonstrate man's ability to master infinitely greater problems than those which threaten his peace, security and prosperity. The statement may be trite and commonplace, but it is nonetheless true, that man's ingenuity in solving the riddles of the universe is in marked contrast with his apparent stupidity and futility in seeking solutions of others directly within his own purview and which, as a matter of fact, are his own creation.

The thought is suggested by recent addition to scientific knowledge of the atmosphere which is now known to consist of four layers—the troposphere, the stratosphere, the ozonosphere and the ionosphere. The troposphere, the layer closest to earth's surface, is the stratum of changing temperatures and pressures and of wind-driven clouds. As long ago as 1899, it was discovered, by temperature tests, that this layer terminates relatively abruptly at a height of between six and seven miles. Beyond this height, the temperature was found to be relatively constant up to about 23 miles. This layer of calm, cloudless air or uniform temperature is the stratosphere of comparatively recent conquest by human ingenuity.

As this is written, a prairie dust storm excludes the sun, and, as a result, the air is markedly cool in temperature. It is palpably cooler. It happens that calculations concerning dust shot into the stratosphere by volcanoes prove similar cooling effects. If one seven-hundredth of a cubic mile of fine dust were blown into the stratosphere it could form a screen which would reduce the intensity of the sun's rays by 20 per cent. The screen would remain suspended in that still windless zone for years, and has been suggested that the ice ages have been caused by such volcanic dust-screens.

Recent research has shown that, above 23 miles and extending up to 38 miles, is another layer rich in ozone and, for that reason, called the ozonosphere. The significance of this layer so far as human history is concerned, lies in the fact that, because it is absorptive of ultra-violet rays from the sun, the earth is adapted to human habitation. Without this screen, it is said, organic life on earth would be wiped out by sun-stroke.

The ozonosphere, unlike the stratosphere, is not cold but hot. Above it and beginning at 50 miles, lies another layer, the ionosphere, so-called because the gasses of the air in that region are in an electrically excited or ionized state. The secrets of this stratum are yielding to radio research although its existence had been deduced, long before the advent of the radio, to explain some of the earth's magnetic phenomena. The ionized particles have the property of reflecting radio waves back to earth and it has been revealed there are two main layers in the ionosphere, at 64 and 112 miles respectively, which reflect these waves. Each of these is split into during the daytime making a total of four layers. These four layers probably mark the heights at which particular constituents of the atmosphere become electrified or ionized.

Recent researches further demonstrated that the electrification in the layers is more intense in summer than in winter, the condition being largely due to ultra-violet rays from the sun. Thunderstorms also play their part, it having been calculated that the electrical energy continually released in thunderstorms is more than sufficient to produce all the observed ionization in the ionosphere.

That scientific minds applied to investigation of the seemingly inaccessible have produced so much positive achievement is in striking contrast with the meagre fruits of the efforts of politicians, statesmen, economists and "brain trusts" to solve the problems of man's social and economic relationships. It suggests the thought that, were scientifically trained minds set freely and independently to work, by universal agreement, upon the problems which seem destined to perpetuate embattled borders between peoples of kindred cultures and similar aspirations, their solution quickly would be forthcoming. The rest would be up to us.

Charting Coast Of Labrador

British Naval Surveying Ship Challenger Engaged In Work

The British naval surveying ship Challenger, has sailed from Portsmouth to resume her task of charting the coast of Labrador. This work has never been completed. Last year the admiralty started the Challenger upon the work because it has become necessary to provide safe channels for navigation along this dangerous coast owing to the development of Labrador. The survey will take years to complete.

Russian Aviators Have Completed Big Task

Rescued 101 People From Floating
Ice Off Siberian Coast

Two months ago 101 Russians were wrecked on floating ice between Wrangel Island and the coast of Siberia. Since that time the efforts of Russian aviators in rescuing the 101, a few at a time, has held the interest and admiration of the world. The task was recently completed. Not a life was lost.

Moscow, aware of the rich mineral resources of this Arctic island whose inaccessibility has become proverbial, rashly determined to populate it with permanent colonists. Of the 101 there were ten women and two children. After their ship had been crushed, the adventurers, who had plenty of food and fuel, built living quarters on the ice and were not uncomfortable in spite of the sub-zero temperatures. They suffered little, but they were constantly in peril, for the breaking up of the ice might bring death at any moment.

The organization of the relief work was thorough and systematic, and its success is a tribute both to the skill and to the indomitable courage of the Russian aviators. It is not without reason that Moscow is celebrating, and praising the efficiency of Soviet organization, the hardihood of the marooned men and women, and the devotion and ability of the rescuers.

One Moscow newspaper comments, perhaps with reason, that if the disaster had occurred in the days of the czars the Wrangel colonists would all have perished while bureaucratic officials argued as to which department should undertake the rescue.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

CAST OFF UGLY FAT

Woman Loses 28 lbs. in 3 Months

"Three months ago," a woman writes, "I was packed to try Kruschen Salts to reduce my weight, which was 222 lbs. I had tried other things but all had no effect. Now I know that Kruschen Salts are after all. In three weeks I lost 5 lbs., and I felt five years younger. I really want to say I feel a different woman. I have now lost 28 lbs. to date."

Dear G. B.:

If you are overweight take one half-teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning. You will notice just a slight or alarming loss of weight, but just a steady decrease of that flabby fat which is as unhealthy as it is unattractive. Kruschen is the result of a series of sea minerals salts found in the waters of those European spas that have been used by generations of overstoof people to reduce weight.

Got Post War Job

Showed One-Armed Man Who Did
Great Things For England

The story how Sir Edward Hilton Young, minister of health, who lost an arm in the 1918 raid on Zeebrugge, got a post-war job with the admiralty was told in a speech by Lord Riddell. Sir Edward, Lord Riddell said, came back from active service and sought a position with the admiralty only to be told there was "no room for a one-armed man."

Sir Edward, said, retorted: "Well, come with me to Trafalgar Square and I'll show you a one-armed man who did great things for England."

That, concluded Lord Riddell, was much, "even for the admiralty", as one of his chisel replied: "If you are another Nelson we will take you on."

Even though he plans to drop 3,000 feet down into the depths of the ocean in a diving glove, William Beebe doesn't expect any sea serpents.

Mr. Beebe was making last preparations for his departure for St. George, Bermuda, where he will spend six months studying deep sea fish and the strange, weird lives they lead.

Common potato scab occurs in practically every potato-growing country of the world. In this respect Canada's enormous potato industry has the advantage of the knowledge of this disease acquired by the pathologists of the laboratories of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, particularly at Charlottetown, P.E.I., and Fredericton, N.B.

The nine official hog grades included in the regulations regarding hog production in Canada seek to separate the different types, weights, and qualities of hogs in accordance with their average market worth. That worth is determined in the main by consumer demand and the selling values of the commercial cuts from the carcasses of the different grades.

It is a common impression that it takes a great deal of time and hard work to make ice cream. Such is not the case. Armament Race Said To Be In Full Swing Among Great Powers

Geneva.—Alarming signs that the much-feared armament race is in full swing the world over are seen by statesmen in recent developments in the capitals of practically every major power.

From the nerve centres of the world come reports that the nations are buckling on more armor; that every branch of armament—air, water and land—is being strengthened.

Under a placid surface in London, there is concern over the future; France has announced new precautions; the Russian bear is fixing new spikes to his mighty claws; Germany is rebelling against the terms of the Versailles treaty; Japan is increasing her armaments; the United States is looking after her naval and air forces, and Italy talks of modernization and enlargement of her fighting forces.

In this international center the condition is ascribed by expert overseasers principally to two things; the failure of France and Germany to reach an armament agreement, and uncertainties regarding Japan's policies in the far east.

Here are figures gathered from authoritative sources showing how the re-armament spirit has been manifested:

France, during the past three years has increased her fighting force by 65,000 by employing civilians to perform work formerly done by soldiers, and now is considering pushing up the figure by 125,000 more through a lengthening of the periods of conscription.

Germany has increased her army and navy budget for 1934 from $268,000,000 to about $358,000,000, and her aviation budget from $28,000,000 to $84,000,000. She also has allotted $100,000,000 to the Nazi storm troopers, whom Chancellor Adolf Hitler has said he would be willing to disarm under an agreement with England.

Prussia has increased her armies in the past two years from $62,000 to about $78,000, most of the new strength going to the east.

Japan, in January, 1934, had increased her land, naval and air forces by 100,000 to a total of 450,000 in three years.

Italy in two years has increased her forces by 43,000, mainly in the air and naval branches, and although her armaments budget shows a reduction for 1934, the saving will be through administrative economies. The king of Italy in opening parliament, declared that his country has no intention of being "caught napping."

Poland has pushed her army up from 280,000 to 341,000.

The only two nations in Europe which show a decrease in army strength are Switzerland and Great Britain. Britain has provided for replacement of certain naval craft and a small increase in air strength.

Bill Ready For Discussion

Ottawa.—The government's program of public works for unemployment relief may be introduced into the house before long. In answer to a question by Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, opposition leader, the prime minister said that the legislation was practically ready, but he thought it advisable to advance bills now before the chamber before introducing new material.

Bank Report States Seeding Is General In Western Provinces

Montreal.—Wide variations in seasonal conditions and in the progress of agricultural operations in Canada are noted in the first 1934 crop report of the Bank of Montreal.

Spring is three weeks earlier than usual in British Columbia, as demonstrated by vegetation and well advanced seeding. In the prairies, seeding is fairly general. In Ontario, however, farming operations are two weeks later than average.

Present indications on the prairies point to a reduced wheat acreage and an increase in foder crops. Details in respect to the western provinces follow:

Flood Causes Heavy Damage

People Of Fort Vermilion Feted To Vacate Homes

Fort Vermilion, Alta.—The entire population of Fort Vermilion was forced to flee to the hills to escape flood waters from the Peace river, caused by ice jam just above the town. Five homes were completely wrecked, buildings inundated, telegraph towers crushed by ice and thousands of dollars damage done to property and livestock as a great wall of water swept over the town at 4 a.m. Fort Vermilion is about 250 miles north of Peace River Town on the Peace river.

The entire population spent the night camped in the hills watching the devastation of their homes going on below them.

On the south bank of the river, men of the settlement hastened to rescue children from the mission with teams and wagons, but within a few minutes the teams had to be abandoned and boats used as the swirling flood water flooded the ground floor.

Battering ice cakes crashed into telephone towers on the north side until they gave way before the impact and were swept away in the flood.

Fort Vermilion settlement has a population of about 200 persons. The population of the district is about 1,500.

Newspaper Radio Association

Papers Owning Broadcasting Stations Form Organization

Toronto.—The Canadian Newspaper Radio Association, an organization of newspaper owners of radio stations, was formed in Toronto. The organization is Dominion-wide, and will act in all matters "of mutual interest" according to an announcement.

Would Increase Army

Paris.—France's army may grow bigger. It was learned through a project for lengthening the military service of conscripts. The great force numbering nearly 1,000,000 men that France had when war came in 1914 was shrunk to half that strength, and members of the general staff assert that the German army is numerically superior to the French.

London.—At the auction sale of the Hinds stamp collection, two Canada 12c. stamps, black, 1851 issue, were sold for £1,400. Eight years ago at the sale in Paris of the Ferri collection, these two stamps were bought for £925.

Imperial Press Conference

Eight Canadian Delegates To Go To South Africa

Toronto.—Canada will be invited to send eight delegates to the fifth imperial press conference, it was announced at the annual meeting of the Canadian section, Empire Press Union, here. The conference will be held in the Union of South Africa from May 6 to June 21, 1935.

Details of the trip were explained at a meeting, held under the chairmanship of J. H. Woods, editor of the Calgary Herald. There will be a tour of South Africa and Rhodesia, the delegates to be the guests of the South African section. Preliminary arrangements for selection of delegates were left in the hands of the executive.

Reports presented at the meeting showed the Canadian section to be in flourishing condition with membership well maintained. The news letter issued monthly and mailed to all members of the Empire Press Union throughout the British Empire, continues to be well received and is doing good service in making Canadian affairs better known in other Empires.

Words of appreciation were voiced also of the Australian news letter, which is doing a similar service for Australia in Canada and elsewhere.

Mining Men Satisfied

Small Producers Not Affected By Revised Gold Tax

Toronto.—Under the government's revised plan of taxation on gold production, only 12 companies will contribute to the federal treasury, while about 25 producers of the yellow metal, some of them now paying dividends, are exempt.

Mining men across Canada viewed the federal government's revised gold taxation plan with general approval. They were satisfied the assessment would not touch the small producer of the yellow metal or low-grade ore miners who fight against the straight 10 per cent levy was waged on behalf of these groups.

Canadian Wheat For Japan

Domestic Sold Japan Wheat To Value Of Three Million Dollars Last Year

Montreal.—Although Japan buys most of her wheat from Australia due to the latter country's lower rate of exchange Canada nevertheless sold Japan $3,000,000 worth of wheat last year. Hon. Herbert Marler, Canadian minister to Japan, stated here.

He thought it would be many years before Manchuria loomed as a serious competitor to the world's wheat markets. Last year, he pointed out, Manchuria produced about 60,000,000 bushels of wheat, sufficient only for Harbin area.

AS NAME HONORED SOVIET FLIER

Commander Mauritz Slipov, Soviet aviator, received flags of the Soviet Republic and the United States from the Chamber of Commerce, Nome, Alaska, before he boarded his plane for a flight to the ice pack where 161 survivors of the ill-fated freighter Cheyushkin were awaiting rescue. Slipov a substantial revenue to the government from the sale of tax stamps.

BREAKS SILENCE

Alexander Kerensky, former premier of Soviet Russia, who recently broke the silence of his life by pronouncing Communism a dead issue as practised in Russia. One of his major reasons for such a contention was that in the struggle between capitalism and labor, the middle class has emerged more powerful than either.

"I will not stand idle nor silent as long as there are men in charge of industries that will pay their own employees a rate of wages crushing the individual down into penury on the one hand, and on the other hand will set up destructive competition against the fair business man."

Mr. Stevens expressed "amusement" regarding recent criticism by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce of governmental expenditure.

The minister accused business men themselves of being responsible for the heavy governmental expenditures of the past 15 years. "Who opposed the Canadian Government Merchant Marine project?" he asked. He wondered if the heavy machinery manufacturers, the business men engaged in the paint, varnish and lumber industries, had opposed the scheme. "On the contrary, the greatest de-

Stevens Denounces Firms Paying Dividends While Employees On Relief

Montreal.—Crucifixion of those in business who played the game squarely by those who did not would not be permitted, said Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce, in a speech before a large gathering of Montreal business men.

Mr. Stevens denounced business men who criticized the government and clamored for curtailment of expenditures and balanced budgets, while ignoring the fact that controllable expenditures had already been cut by more than $80,000,000.

"And what have these same business men done on their own behalf? They have increased the mortgage bonded indebtedness of industries and business corporations in Canada from $220,000,000 to $1,178,000,000 in the past 17 years, 500 per cent. Yet business expansion and output have only increased 50 per cent in the same period."

"Turn your eyes on your own activities," he directed his listeners. "See if criticism cannot be directed on your own activities in this respect." He advised chambers of commerce and boards of trade to discipline their members and preach to them what they preached to governments.

Evidently referring to the investigations in prior sessions and made by his House of Commons committee, he said "taxpayers will hear there are businesses, large and powerful concerns, paying dividends, during this period of depression, some of whose employees are being sustained on relief by the taxpayers' money because of the unreasonably low rate of wages paid. No business concern has a right to flaunt big dividends before shareholders if it does not pay fair wages."

He invited members of industry to try and organize themselves into combines to mulct the public, not only great organizations of industry, but to associate themselves together for the purpose of disciplining their own membership into following fair and ethical practices in their industry.

Beat Mollison Record

Aviators Make Australia-England Flight In Less Time

Lymne, England.—Kenneth Waller and Bernard Rubin set a new record for the flight from Australia to England, lopping two and one-half hours off the previous mark established by James Mollison.

Waller, pilot instructor of the Cineplex Flying Club, and Rubin, an Australian flyer, left Port Darwin, Australia, April 23 and landed here after eight and one-half days flying.

They had flown to Australia from here, leaving March 22, with the object of surveying the route of the England-Australia air race that will be held in the summer in connection with the centenary celebration of the state of Victoria.

They landed at Port Darwin, April 8, after being two weeks on route.

Farm Credits

Premier Browne Of Alberta Confers With Dominion Officials

Ottawa.—Hon. J. E. Browne, premier of Alberta, and Hon. George Hoadley, his minister of agriculture, were in consultation with Dominion government ministers and officials, particularly in respect to the forthcoming legislation dealing with re-financing of farm credits and amendments to the bankruptcy acts.

Pressure of other business has delayed appearance of this legislation, announcement of which was made some weeks ago. It is a measure of far-reaching ramifications, involving as it does the bankruptcy and moratorium legislation of the provinces.

Mr. Browne will be in Ottawa for some time.

Unfolds A Plan To Speed Up The Circulation Of Money

Ottawa.—A picture of money circulation speeded up to a breath-taking pace with all transactions settled on the spot, by use of currency bearing demurrage tax was unfolded before the house banking and commerce committee. The sponsor of the scheme was E. S. Woodward, national executive secretary of the Free Economy League of Canada.

Mr. Woodward was a volunteer witness and was given 40 minutes to state his plan. His suggestions were received with lively interest and considerable incredulity.

He would substitute for the present currency an issue of money upon which the holder would be required to affix a stamp valued at one per cent. of the face value of the note on the first day of each month. Metal money would be turned in for re-minting at the end of every year and a small minting charge made.

In this way there would be an extraordinary tendency on the part of the holder of money to get rid of it, resulting in rapid turnover, spot settlement for every transaction, and a small minting charge made.

Should the spending on circulation attain too great a velocity, the stamp charge could be decreased, and if the velocity were too slow the charge could be increased.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Oxford Groupers visiting the Pass towns over the week-end appeared to be very happy in their mission. This oft said that open confession is good for the soul; this appears to be one of the outstanding features of the Group. They freely tell audiences that their lives have not been exemplary by any means. If Oxford Group influence helps to cast off hypocrisy and snobbery it will go a long way towards making people more honest with others as well as themselves.

Going around one often hears people talk of hard times, whose actions belie their words. Hard times means going without luxuries, and being in want. We often hear these complaints from many who certainly do not appear to be denying themselves their accustomed pleasures, so that the words carry very little meaning. The majority of working people are thankful if they can meet their current expenses, without indulging in the frills which many enjoy.

A school trustee this week received an anonymous letter. Ordinarily such missives do not warrant serious attention, for anyone who is misguided enough to indulge in this questionable form of making a complaint is more deserving of censure than the censured. This particular letter in disguised handwriting makes a suggestion that certain action be taken by this trustee to "do his stuff and cut down taxes," with pointed suggestions which it is highly improbable a writer would make over his own signature. It savors somewhat of one whose experience should be productive of more ethical conduct, and that's putting it mildly. Genuine criticism should certainly not be afraid to carry the name of its author.

Writing anonymous letters "eaves drops" for discovery, which are usually quite easily traced.

Visitors occasionally remark on the numerous garbage heaps in prominent places. Though it may not be possible to keep buildings looking trim and attractive at all times, unsightly accumulation of refuse can be avoided. The most effective way would be to have a system of collecting and removing it to an authorized dumping ground instead of each one being a law unto himself. Clean-up day requires to be rigidly enforced and the majority of householders would be glad to co-operate. What are health by-laws for, if not to prevent nuisances? Mining towns, in spite of coal dust flying around, can be greatly improved in appearance by lanes and alleys being cleaned and kept clean.

"A little humor now and then, is relished by the wisest men." A small boy drew our attention to a report in The Journal which was incorrect in a minor detail, concerning an automobile collision, in which his father's car was damaged. The little fellow was quite concerned over it, even to the extent of telling us he hadn't told the truth. Which shows how careful we should be, especially when the eyes of the young are centered on what we say and do. That's our business where one cannot hide his mistakes—editing a newspaper. If we ever get by St. Peter with a clean sheet, it will be a miracle. Even the power of The Press will not enable us to jump that hurdle.

The Daily Advertiser at Cranbrook gave up the ghost and its publisher, Elmer Hall, returned to Trail. First published as a mimeograph sheet, then in another form, it made a year's attempt to carry on a free distribution sheet. High pressure salesmanship of manufacturers of mimeograph outfitts are responsible for this form of competition with established newspapers. The Cranbrook Courier, one of the best weeklies in British Columbia, published by L. P. Sullivan, was evidently regarded by the merchants there as being of greater community benefit and business value than the daily sheet. The fact that people are willing to pay a fair price for a regular newspaper clearly indicates that it occupies a useful place in any worth-while community which appreciates independent journalism.

No newspaper worthy of the name will countenance retrogressive methods but will advocate progressive policies. That the newspaper is necessary that it receives a measure of cooperation from those whose interests it always is ready to champion provided they are for the benefit of the entire community which the newspaper strives to serve. Newspapers don't just happen. They are the result of hard work, close attention to detail, perseverance and a will to serve. No better indication of the business and social life of a community exists than a bright weekly newspaper and the merchant who advertises in it not only renders himself a service worth-while, but advertises his enterprise to hundreds of others. It is the most effective way to promote goodwill which is essential in developing business and establishing new contacts. Its importance is stressed by many large firms in placing a high value on customers' goodwill and trademarks which impress public consciousness.

Dominion Day, July 1, will be looked forward to by the young people for its usual program of sports and celebration. A meeting will be announced in the near future to prepare the program and all interested should make it a point to attend. Cooperation will make it a day of real pleasure in helping to provide pleasure for the boys and girls. It should be Coleman's big day. Let's all measure up to it and DO OUR PART.

Steve Leosky does some effective work in a nice quiet way. The entertainment in the Community Hall was a highly pleasing demonstration of national ideals not only on the Slovak people in being loyal to the traditions of their forefathers, but to the land of their adoption. The way their choir opened the program with the singing of "O Canada" was truly inspiring, with their national flag and the Union Jack given a place of honor on the stage. It was a privilege to be one of the guests and to join with them in honoring an outstanding national leader of the Slovak people.

Schism is a cause of many ills and exists in a multitude of forms. True self-analysis will frequently reveal it. Its more difficult to fool oneself than to fool others.

A Little Bit of History

An interesting subscription list of 1910 in the possession of Alex. Cameron shows the amounts given by townpeople towards levelling what was then termed Coleman New Park. Heading the list were W. Murr and A. L. Manley with $100 each; O. E. S. Whiteside $25; Cameron, Morrison, Ouimette, Burns & Co., $20 each; while other subscriptions from $5 up to $15 were given, making a total of $514 by 26 subscribers. The money was raised, states the preface, "for leveling and fencing an athletic ground in above park."

The fence has long since disappeared, but many a game and sports day has been enjoyed on the field which 24 years ago was laid out.

No Royal Road to Success

Advertising makes the public conscious of the stores whose names are constantly before them. Nationally advertised products are purchased in greater quantities because the public is always aware of them through persistent advertising. The same rule applies to stores in a small town. Those whose advertising attracts public attention every week in The Journal and Ad. Bulletin receive the most attention from the public when it comes to buying. It's a rule which never fails.

Business has to be sought in the highways and byways and by impressing the public consciousness of who you are and what you are selling. Nothing is so short lived as public memory. Many a well known firm curtailing its advertising has gone out of business after vainly trying to regain ground lost to competitors.

And just as long as motorists go on comparing, checking and testing, Chevrolet will hold and increase its great sales leadership. Because Chevrolet refuses to compromise on quality. The industry's leading engineers . . . the great General Motors Proving Ground . . . and an organization with "an ear to the ground and an eye to the future" . . . take care of that. Will Visit Antipodes

Duke Of Gloucester, His Majesty's
Third Son, Will Tour
Next Autumn

The government recently announced King George's decision that the Duke of Gloucester, His Majesty's third son, will visit New Zealand and Australia next autumn instead of Prince George, who has just returned from a tour of South Africa.

The king, it was said, reached his decision in view of the heavy strain under which Prince George had been placed during his whirlwind African tour and considered it would be unwise for him to undertake a second important tour calling for a six months' absence from England.

His Majesty's announcement came after he had consulted the governors-general of New Zealand and Australia. The Duke of Gloucester, who previously had had no opportunity of visiting the Dominions, will represent the king at the centenary celebration of the state of Victoria, Australia. He will carry out the programme which was arranged for Prince George.

Trips Between Planets

Travelling To The Moon On Rays Of Light Is Latest Prophecy

A trip to the moon on rays of light generated by the distinguishment of a few pounds of lead was the prophecy of Prof. Auguste Piccard, world famous stratosphere balloonist.

"I am not crazy," the Swiss physicist added.

Rockets are impractical for interplanetary travelling because they have to carry 20 tons of explosives for the return trip, Piccard told a lecture audience, but "the disintegration of matter offers immense possibility."

Matter dematerialized and transformed into light rays of tremendous energy "might permit trips between planets," he went on.

Little Journeys In ScienceFIRE AND FLAME

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

No one knows when man first kindled fire, but we do know that there was a time when he was not able to do so. The eruption of volcanoes, lightning, and forest fires were his first experiences with the phenomenon, and from these learned a fear and awe of it, and later he worshipped it. He thought he did so by friction, a method which is still used in many parts of the world, and which applies to our modern friction match, invented in England a century ago John Walker.

Fire first served man with its warmth and by helping him to repel the attacks of wild beasts. We used it also to heat water to give him the warmth of the fire, and in it he forged his first primitive weapons.

Lavoisier, the great French scientist who lived in the eighteenth century, first discovered the real nature of fire, and he named it as the rapid combination of fuels with oxygen, accompanied by the production of heat and light.

From the days when man first learned to make fire until comparatively recent times, the fires of home and industry were fed only with wood. Then a new fuel was discovered, which began the beginning of the age of steel. This new fuel was coal.

The change from wood to coal brought about a great change in industry. The importance of coal in the smelting of iron made it the foundation upon which our modern machine age has been built. All the early steam engines were fired with wood. The adoption of coal for fuel gave them far greater speed.

Oil has been known to man for several thousand years and was used with some extent in all ages. Heavy oil was used in the oil wells of the oil fields of Russia many years ago and it is there that the first oil-burning stoves were invented. Today oil, mixed with coal, is the fuel that drives the mighty battalions and the swift ocean liners.

Super-Giant Stars

Noted Woman Astronomer Has Found And Photographed Fifty

The American Philosophical Society at Philadelphia learned of the discovery of 50 new super-giant stars, larger than the sun and 60,000 times as hot. Fifty of them have been found by Miss Annie Jump Cannon, noted Harvard astronomer, in the Large Cloud of Magellan. This Cloud is just off there in the sky, a mere 200,000,000,000 miles away. Yet Dr. Cannon produced excellent photographic plates. A new star to an astronomer: a green light to a taxi driver. Ruled Against Farmer

Customs Authorities Decided Cows Were Not Draft Animals

Recent news dispatches told of a Canadian farmer who asked his cows to wagons and various other wheeled farming implements and drove them across the border, protesting to the customs authorities that he should not pay duty upon the cows because they were draft animals. The officials looked the animals over, discovered that several of them gave milk, and ruled against the farmer. Evidently he had the tradition of the American farm that a milk cow is entitled to spend a life of leisure.

The Canadian, however, might have countered with the fact that in many districts of central and southern Europe the peasants recognize such bovine rights. In the Black Forest of Germany, which besides being a forest district is as well a pretty thickly settled agricultural area, the traveler frequently meets the milk cows yoked in teams and drawing home primitive carts first taught to kindly fire, but it is thought he did so by friction, a method which is still used in many parts of the world, and which applies to our modern friction match, invented in England a century ago John Walker.

Vastness Of The Oceans

Few Grasp Immensity of These Bodies of Water

The vastness of the oceans is one of the phases of nature that very few people grasp. Even those who cross the Atlantic and lose sight of land for days together have little realization of what they are passing through. The sight of another steamer on the horizon gives a thrill which is rarely translated into a reflection as to the rarity of such a sight in spite of the multitude of vessels continually crossing the seas. Out of the regular steamer track the rarity of sighting another vessel is extraordinary.

The mysteries of the oceans are the currents which flow like rivers through the general mass of the waters and an example of this has been given recently in the discovery of a life-boat near the North Cape in Norway, which had been abandoned in mid-Atlantic after the rescue of the crew of the British freighter Exeter. The boat was found in a heavy gale in January, 1933. After it had been taken on board a heavy sea swept the life-boat alongside the liner American Merchant, and stove in the forward watertight compartment. It had drifted 2,700 miles in the 15 months. No one apparently had seen it in all that time. It was covered with a coating of sea moss.

EDNA ROBB WEBSTER
Author of "Joretta," "Lipstick Girl" Etc.SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, deciding to live their own lives apart until they can afford to buy a home. Peter is a young, strapping boy trying to win a competition for a scholarship abroad and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is a girl of many talents when she comes of age and so is studying commercial art in the hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story include Avis Worth, the wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter, Sylvia Todd, Peter's model, and Gus Matson, his former room mate, who has been married off. At a party at an exclusive club Peter entertains Camilla's guests with impersonations. When the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret, Camilla stays behind with Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awoke it is early morning and Avis and another boy are standing over them. This makes it necessary for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. They go to a marriage agency where Camilla has submitted some of her work, send her and offer her a salary of $50.00 a week to start and a room to have during the day. She tells Peter of her good fortune in securing employment. Mrs. Hoyt is also informed that Camilla has obtained work and is going to leave. Peter goes to see Avis and Werts rents a studio on the same floor as Peter, and invites him to have dinner there. He accepts reluctantly, but is favorably impressed with his visit. Camilla urges Peter to accept some of her earnings to help him get a better reference and they quarrel. After Camilla leaves from the studio, Avis Werts calls and persuades Peter to accept a loan of $1,000.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XLII.

"By the way," Peter said suddenly, "we are invited to a party for Saturday night. Avis is having a hot studio-warming. I suppose you would call it, and she commands our presence."

A little frown shadowed Camilla's face for an instant. "I can't understand why Avis took that large studio when she does practically no painting."

"I suppose because she can afford to do whatever she fancies. Just a whim for the moment."

"No doubt. But, even so, I wonder why she never took a place in the Craft building, since money is no obstacle. The apartments are ever so much nicer and more modern."

"She doesn't think so at all. I asked her the same question. She says the older building is ever so much more artistic and has more atmosphere than the new. And you know, her suite looks out on that little garden court with a window above from each room. I don't know but she's right, at that. Her furnishings are ever so much more effective in those high ceiling rooms than they would be in the low rooms of the Craft building, with narrow passages and shining new varnish. She has some gorgeous stuff."

"Oh, you've seen her apartment?"

"Of course, being her nearest neighbor, I had to pass inspection on it before she opened it to the public," he said lightly. "She's going to have me do some things for her when I get time, too. First prospect, old girl. So you must be very sweetened to the new client. Remember, the customer is always right, whether she is or not."

"Most of the time she isn't, but I'll do my best for the cause," Camilla smiled, gallantly. A little secret fear clutched at her heart—it was premonition or warning?

But she quickly dismissed any such depressing thoughts, in the ecstasy of that night with Peter. He was once again her gentle, adoring lover, who laughed delightedly at her quaint remarks and gestures, and told her how much he had accomplished during the three days since she had seen him.

"Neither of them referred again to the harsh words of their last meeting, and they each believed that the experience was erased as completely as the day itself that had slipped into the past of countless yesterdays. She lay in his arms and heard the deep resonance of his voice with sweet content, lost herself in his ardent kisses and dreamed again of that happy day when they would be together forever.

Camilla would have preferred to decline the invitation for Saturday evening, but she recognized the obligation as another of those unpleasant duties which she would be obliged to meet many times in the course of her career as Peter's wife. Like him—she would have to serve his public. The more famous he became, the more public would be their private lives. But any duty became a pleasure when it involved being Peter's wife, which position more women would envy her as he advanced.

Avia was one of the first of these, Camilla knew that. She never had been particularly fond of Avis Werts, and her very obvious personal interest in Peter did not diminish her aversion to the other girl. It might be flattering to Peter to have other women admire him, but it did not make life more secure for Avis.

Camilla told herself that such a condition should also be flattering to that man whom other women coveted had selected her from them all, to cherish and honor for his life. But that was just the trouble, exactly, her caution reminded her. For all his life would probably be spent for nothing if he were always a character.

The studio party was a magnificent gesture to make an impression upon each and every guest for a long time to come. Most of them being the kind who had grown immune to impressions. It probably failed in that respect, with two exceptions. And those two were the most important targets at which Avis was aiming—so that was all right.

One was Peter, for every woman who in love will exert herself to the utmost to impress the man she loves. The other was Camilla, who was much more accustomed to expensive displays than Peter; but Avia especially wanted to impress Camilla with the fact that she now held the advantage over her with respect to having money for anything she might wish to do. She did, Camilla knew that although she now felt financially secure about providing for herself, even that salary which she regarded as very good for a beginning was only a mite as compared to the cost of Avis' party.

The guests were many and varied: Avia's own social group, art students and critics, established professionals, favorite models, tenants of both the Craft building and the Annex. They drifted in and out all the long evening, danced, ate, drank and made merry, with the generous encouragement of the hostess and her beverages.

For effect and approbation, she had selected several paintings and sculptured pieces from the most distinguished of her guests for a private exhibit. They added to the attractions and assured her the approval of the leaders of her adopted profession as a patron of the arts, at least. To a certain extent, her efforts linked the producers and the market, and one sale did actually culminate from the affair.

Avia was stunning. In wide-mesh black net, like delicate spider-webs that more revealed than concealed her white shoulders and molded form and net-clad ankles below the long, full skirt that lit the line of her figure half way down to swirl in a clinging fullness as she moved gracefully among her guests.

She held most of the time to Peter's arm, having taken possession of him as soon as she arrived and saying sweetly to Camilla, I'm sure you won't mind if I give Peter a little the better of this evening. He needs to know people—the kind of people who are here to-night, and I want to be sure he meets everyone and they remember who he is. I want everyone to know you, too, but you already know more of them than Peter does and after all, he is the one who has to make an impression with the right people if he is going to succeed." She inclined her head toward a group across the room and lowered her voice. "I especially want him to meet my uncle, Mr. Dunforth, who is one of the judging committee for the National exhibit. I'll introduce you later, my dear."

As a matter of fact, she failed to do so, but Camilla gave no thought to it. She was just as anxious for Peter to meet Mr. Danforth as Avis was.

She smiled a generous approval of her hostess' plans. "Of course, I want you to introduce Peter to everyone. Is there anything I can do to help you?"

"Indeed there is. Help everyone you know to get acquainted with everyone else. There's Terry over there," she added significantly. "I know he will be delighted to see you again."

Terry was delighted, and expressed his pleasure in no uncertain words and gestures. He took possession of Camilla much as Avis had done with Peter. Camilla wore a shiny frock of cherry red, with cut out crystals for ornaments, and more eyes followed her about on Terry's arm than noticed Avis and Peter.

But Avis gave no heed to that, if she noticed it at all. It was Peter's attention which she sought, and held throughout the evening. Except to those who knew he was married, she made no reference to his wife, and Peter did not note the omission. He was gravely anxious to make that impression for which Avis was still gratified to her for her unselfish interest and earnestly convinced that she was doing him a very generous favor.

Mr. Danforth was a solid little man with a handsome head and a Van Dyke beard, who inspected Peter's height with evident approval and appeared to be adequately impressed. Avis made sure that he would not forget Peter.

"Uncle John, I want you to know Peter Anson," she explained distinctly. "He is that favorite pupil of Professor Drake's, who finished National this year and is entering a place in the Paris scholarship exhibit. I told you about him before."

"You shouldn't tell him everything you know about me," Peter chided her with good humor.

Danforth clasped his big hand firmly. "Yes, indeed, it is a pleasure to know you, Mr. Anson. I look forward to seeing your work. Avis has spoken of you often, in fact, every time I have seen her recently," he laughed. His manner might have implied that Peter was not a married man, and an object of Avis' affections.

One was Peter, for every woman who in love will exert herself to the utmost to impress the man she loves. The other was Camilla, who was much more accustomed to expensive displays than Peter; but Avia especially wanted to impress Camilla with the fact that she now held the advantage over her with respect to having money for anything she might wish to do. Hudson Presents a New
Convertible Coupe

With unit engineering and a very high ratio of power to weight, thus guaranteeing both ruggedness and brilliant performance, Hudson-Essex of Canada Limited introduces to day the new 8 cylinder convert ible coupe shown above. The streamlined design is particularly noticeable but an outstanding feature to motorists is the fact that the 1934 prices on the new model will be hundreds below the 1933 figures for Hudson convertibles. Models on view at Motordrome.

Personal and Local

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Martinek of St. Paul, Alta., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. Lysek for a few days.

The wheels of the mail wagon used by the post-office were stolen. Some would steal the shirt off a dead man.

Those in the short play at the Slovak Society entertainment on Friday were S. Dablik, J. Majercak, J. Baruta, Mrs. A. Hatalick and Mrs. M. Kratky.

A.F. Short, deputy grand master, Masonic District No. 8, went to Cardston on Tuesday to make his official visit to the lodge there, and was accompanied by a few members of Summit Lodge.

$90 was collected from the mine workers and $32.25 from the stores for the family of A. Kulig to defray the funeral expenses of their child recently killed by an automobile. The family deeply appreciated the response.

He who is afraid to state an opinion, who sits on the fence, and doesn't courage to "boos a goose," is just a jelly fish. No backbone, no enemies, no friends. Just a cipher in the daily merry go-round.

J. Hadley, H. Garner, J.L. Lonsbury, A. Harry, J. Bell and R.F. Barnes attended a local meeting on Wednesday evening to discuss re-organization of the local branch of the Canadian Legion. Capt. Geo. Hudson, organizer, of Calgary, was present.

Calgary Herald: There is supposed to be a local ordinance forbidding the running of dogs at large, but it is a common sight to see police dogs with no guardian within reasonable distance. This particular type of dog species should never be allowed to run about at his own sweet will. He is a menace to women and children, etc.

Calgary Courier: How come so many fine real musicians are to be found in a little spot down in the Pass? One theory is that when the depression came on these splendid young people had a lot of time on their hands and took up fiddling to keep from going crazy. But they have wonderful leaders and teachers down there. Hats off to W.H. Moser, E.H. Upton, W. J. Harris, Miss Chardon, and the others with whom we are not familiar. They smiled when they won and they smiled when they lost. These people have real sporting proclivities.

ST. PAUL'S UNITED CHURCH

On Mothers Day Sunday School scholars will participate in the singing service. A Memorial pageant will be presented.

A short vesper service will be held at 7 p.m., and the congregation will leave for Bellevue at 7.20 for a combined service to be addressed by Rev. Peter Bryce D.D., of Toronto central office of the United Church. Car owners can help in transportation, which will be appreciated. See special article in this issue on Dr. Bryce.

Michel vs. Blairmore at Michel

Michel kicked off before a fair crowd and against a stiff breeze. Sanders got away on the right and crossed, Evans clearing. Blairmore stuckled and Grey was unfortunate with a shot that went past the post. Michel broke away on the left and Challa crossed for Walker to score. Blairmore pressed from the kick off and Grey scored for Blairmore on a pass by Thomas. With the teams on level terms again they both went out to win. Michel pressed and Gaskell shot, Dutfield just partly clearing and Walker scored a soft goal for Michel. Wenshly tied the score for Blairmore five minutes later with the best goal of the game scoring from thirty yards out. Half time score 2-2.

Blairmore kicked off against the wind and were soon defeated. Evans gave away a corner which was placed nicely for Travis to score for Michel. Travis scored soon after making it 4-2 for Michel and finishing the scoring.
